Dear colleagues,

Please, see the first announcement and invitation to our ESID Spring School in Primary Immunodeficiencies.

We have invited great, experienced and enthusiastic faculty members (such as Taco Kuijpers from Netherlands or Sinica Savic from United Kingdom), we have selected a place in wonderful and romantic city of Kutna Hora, which is situated in the central part of the Czech Republic, 85 km far from Prague and now we are waiting for your participation. For more information you can visit our facebook pages: <https://www.facebook.com/ESID-Spring-School-1380816455559127> where you can find the news regarding ESID Spring School and useful information about previous meeting.

The school is open not only for young medical doctors with an interest in primary immunodeficiencies. We expect applications including CV with the latest affiliation, recommendation from the department together with a short motivation letter (both very short) and a draft of the presentation.

The main topic: Primary Immunodeficiency and Innate Immunity

Please, mail all applications to: anna.sediva@lfmotol.cuni.cz . Based on submitted documents we as organizers, together with faculty, will select 20 participants. Apart from these documents we give priority to participants with prompt response and who did not attend last years.

Our ESID Spring School covers everything here in the Czech Republic, we do not provide funds or reimbursement for travel to/from Kutna Hora. There is no registration fee for this event.

Application Deadline: the end of February 2018

We are looking forward to all applications and we also wish happy and successful New Year 2018 to all of you.

With kind regards,

Prof. Anna Sediva, MD, PhD,
