

Guest Editors Introductory Words

Annual joint meeting of the Czech and Slovak Physiological Societies – the 98th Physiological Days – was organized by the 2nd Faculty of Medicine of the Charles University in Prague on February 7-8, 2023. After previous two years when these conferences were affected by covid-19 pandemic the life came back to fully present meeting of Czech and Slovak physiologists, pathophysiologists, pharmacologists, and representatives of other to-physiology-related disciplines.

As it got into the habit all presented lectures and posters were of high quality and triggered interesting discussions both in the lecture halls of University Hospital Motol and later during informal meetings of the participants.

Some of the presented works were submitted to this Supplement of Physiological Research and can be introduced now to wider physiological community.

We would like to particularly thank not only the authors from both Czech and Slovak physiology societies who contributed to this Supplement but also to all reviewers who were willing to evaluate (and improve by their comments and suggestions) the submitted manuscripts.
